GOODS,

He Made a Mistake. To J S .- We think that the young lady's indignation has a just foundation in your impertmence—that is, if your own statement of the affair be taken as the basis of fact. You had no business to hint that she used cosmetics even if you did "honestly think so ' Her ringing for a glass of water and offering that and her handkerchief to you to enable you to test the matter on the apot by washing her cheeks was a masterstroke She did a sensible thing in putting the question beyond doubt by rubbing Ler face, when you declined her offer, with her damp handkerchief, and then did a most becoming thing when she rang for the servant to show you out, stating that you wished to retire That was well done Such a spirited girl as that can have no need of cosmetics. You made a mistake and must now abide the consequences That seems to us about the whole sum and essence of the matter — New York Ledger

A Story of a Painter Rossetti was both iomantic and shrewd, and among Yankee speculators there are few keener men of business than was this childlike genius. Yet he treated the purchasers of his pictures with scant courtesy George Rae, a banker and a fine judge of art had bought several of them, but he objected to the price Rossetti had set on "The Bride" A few days after he returned, and Rossetti greeted him sarcastically

"What do you want for your picture?" asked Rae

"Three hundred gumeas" "Why, you offered it to me for 2501 "I really don't remember," was the lordly reply, "perhaps I did But why didn't you take it? Well, you may have it for £300. If the odd shillings are of any use to you, kae, you re wilcome to them! '-Harry Quilter's ' Preferences'

HALE METHOD OF PAINLESS FILLING.

DR. PORTER HAS RETURNED for the purpose of advertising the

"Hale Method of Painless Filling."

Absolutely painless without Chloroform, Ether, Gas or Cocaine

OFFICE IN SUNDERLAND'S BUILDING, - - - VIRGINIA ST., RENO

Here are a Few Testimonials from Citizens Who have Aiready Tried

Pr. Porter—Dean Siz —It affords me pleasure to say that the Hale method of painless filling opens a new era in the dental world. After having several very sensitive cavities filled by you with gold and amalgam with gratifying results, I am of the opinion that the method is far beyond competition.

PATRICK HENRY.

Dr. Porter—Dear Siz—In answer to your request for my candid opinion as to the Hale method of painless filling, I beg to state that I went to one of Dr. Leek's finest operators in San Francisco, and he filled several teeth for me with more or less pain; but when he came to the one you have just filled, it was simply impossible for me to endure the torture, consequently I asked him to stop, which he did. I thought I would be obliged to have the tooth extracted. I wish to state that in five minutes after you commenced to operate there was positively no pain, it felt just as if you were cutting a piece of wood. I am so highly pleased with the manner in which you filled the tooth that I feel it but just to express my appreciation of the method. It is all you claim for it.

CHARLES HOPE.

Dr Porter—Dear Sir:—I have had teeth extracted before by so-called painless methods, but you are the only operator who has extracted teeth for me without pain Your method of extracting surpasses my most sanguine expectations.

MRS. H. PRENTISS

Dr. Porter—Dear Sin—It gives me great pleasure to state that I am thor oughly convinced of the excellence of your method. I expected to suffer dreadfully having the cavity filled, as it was the worst one I had to have done. In about five minutes after you began to work on it I was satisfied that it would not hurt, which it did not during the entire operation. The tooth you extracted is one I have been dreading for eight years, and after consulting dentists in Sacramento, who advised me not to have it removed, as the ordeal might prove injurious to my health and also disfigure my face. You extracted the tooth without a particle of pain, and I will have no further dread of the dental chair, providing I can obtain the Hale Method

MARY E. FLECKENSTEIN.

Dr Porter—Dean Sin —After using Hale's Pamless Method as administered by you in the extraction of teeth, I can bear testimony that the results are satisfactory, and that teeth can be extracted painless by said method.

Respectfully yours,

HENRY J. NEYLAND

 $Dr.\ Porter$ —Dear Sir.—I believe that the Hale Painless Method of filling is destined to lead the world in its especial field of usefullness. I am particularly impressed with it, owing to the fact that one does not lose crusciousness while having teeth filled, and at the same time does not suffer a particle of pain. You are at liberty to refer any one who contemplates having sensative teeth filled to me

THE CARSON MINT.

The Virginia Chronicle says the following dispatch was received by H. M. Yerington from Senator Stewart at Washington:

"The department argues that the small amount of bullion makes coinage cost five or six times as much as at other mints, and refuses to change the order, but will continue it as an assay

The Chronicle says there is no doubt of the falsity of the statement about the cost of coinage at the Carson mint. If the assertion of the Chronicle is well founded there ought to be no difficulty in proving the fact. It was published throughout the country some time ago that it cost five times as much to coin

MEMORIAL SERVICES

Large Procession - Decorating the Graves of Soldiers and Citizens-Exercises at the Cemeteries and at the Overs House.

never dawned in all this broad land than that of Memorial day in Reno. The sky was cloudless and the air balmy. Flags floated at balf-mast on all the public buildings and on many private ones. Business was generally suspended, all save those engaged in occupations that could not be neglected even for a day participating in the exercises. Ranchers came in from adjacent valleys in holiday attire, bringing their families with them, and attended

THE PROCESSION

Precisely at the appointed hour Grand Marshal Lieutenant Neall and his aides formed the procession in front of the Riverside hotel in the following order:

The Juvenile band of twelve pieces: Grand Marshal Lieutenant Neallin full uniform of the Fourth Cavalry, and his aides, Dr. Mullen and Fred Stadtmuller, mounted: the university cadets. Captain C. P. Brown commanding; first platoon, H. S. Swan commanding; General O. M. Mitchell Post, G. A. R., morning, during vacation, will greatly numbering forty members, S. A. Hamlin commanding; university cadets, second platoon, Lieutenant E. E. Caine commanding; president of the day, orator and chaplain; division No. 2, Uniform Rank, K. of P., S. J. Hodgkinson, commanding, Woman's Relief Corps in carriages; memorial and floral cars; faculty of state university in carriages! vocal quartette, public school teachers and citizens in carriages.

The line of march was north on Virginia street to Commercial Row to Sicemetery. The Juvenile band in their new uniforms made a very creditable appearance, the university cadets were soldierly looking body, and the mempers of General Mitchell Post in the regulation dress, though not so sprightly as the cadets, marched with steady step. The K. of P. in their handsome uniforms, compared favorably with the military.

There were over seventy carriages in the procession and the sidewalks along the line of march were crowded with spectators, many of whom walked to

DECORATING THE GRAVES.

The exercises at Hillside cemetery were impressive. Hon. M. D. Foley, president of the day, delivered a brief and appropriate address: Rev. H. L. Fichette, chaplain, made a very impres sive prayer, the band played appropriate airs, after which the ceremony of lecorating the graves was performed.

The G. A. R. veterans and Woman's Relief Corps covered with flowers the graves of the old soldiers, and the K. of P. paid a like tribute of respect to the memory of their departed brothers. Citizens generally, who had relatives or friends buried in the cemetery, decorated their graves, and that of the Hon. G. W. Cassidy, who was twice elected to congress from Nevada, was covered with flowers. The cemetery looked like a vast flower garden, few if any graves having been neglected. A group of children attracted attention by gaththe country. brilliant among the heroic achievements of the world as the brightest constellation in midnight's starry firmament. For love of country they surrendered every personal ambition, and by their devotion made immortal their patriotism and their valor. With their living contrades the struggle is not ended, the trials and temptations have not ceased; but the patriotic dead are peacefully sleeping upon the nation's bosom, wrapped in the mantle of a nation's love. The political experience of an age is often crystallized into a single maxim. In that solidified form it is preserved upon the historic page. Succeeding ages and nations accept the maxim and repeat the precept without regard to changed circumstances and without considering its truth when applied to a different era and dissimilar people, country and conditions.

The moral and directing influence of aphorisms upon individuals, when impressed by frequent repetition, is agreat force in forming their characters and controlling their netion. Likewise, the representation of a false deduction concerning national life may dull the keen edge of public interest, hight a manity sense of political honor and foster an indifferent regard for the blessings and advantages of good government.

AN UNWORTHY SENTIMENI.

AN UNWORTHY SENTIMENT.

There is no maxim more unworthy of an American more fallacious in its sentiment or more dangerous in its consequences than the oft-reiterated adage. Republics are ungrateful." It is the disparaging phrase with which aspiring and unworthy pulticians often seek to cover their chagrin at a merited defeat. It is heard when in exceptional cases trusted persons who have simply performed their duties faithfully are not permitted to repeatedly succeed themselves in public office, in such instances there is no occasion for national gratitude. The emoluments of office, the fulfilled duties of citizenship and the honors conferred are sufficient compensation for the meritorious, and the defeat of the nuworthy is just cause for congratulation. It is only when the citizen without hope or prospect of deriving personal benefit, and with a certainty of sustaining a loss of material interests, if not of life, willingly surrenders his individual advantage for the wellars of the whole, for the enforcement of a principle or for the establishment or perpetuation of good government that a debt of national gratitude becomes due, and whenever that obligation has arisen the republic of the United States has never been ungrateful.

Gratitude for distinguished services and of the United States has never been ungrateful, Gratitude for distinguished services and reverence for the herole dead are sentiments peculiar to no people, era or nation. They are common to mankind, varying chiefly in their intensity and mode of expression. Granite may be piled until it vies in grandeur with the very mountains, and symbolizes permanence itself. Graceful statues modeled by the hand of art out of nature's cholest marble may point heavenward and please the eje with their symmetry and design. Triumphal arches may be renred through which the victorious living return, and by which the victorious living return, and by which the victorious living return, and by which the victorious full the return of the trophies of many a sampaign, and the very form and features of the victors be made to stand forth upon the canas with a distinctness and perfection almost rivaling nature.

was with a distinctness and perfection almost rivaling nature.

When the people of a free republic with loyal hearts and patriotic emotions rear these emblems in honor of the nation's benefactors they build well; but the heat, the frost, the sunshine and the rain, the restless, constantly active forces of nature which have written upon the faces of the planets "cerranal change," will destroy their symmetry, obliterate their outline and despoil their shading; and, moreover, these are tokens which wealth and power may erect without regard to merit, and to-day the depopulated plains of ancient greatness are strewn with broken fragments of artistle design erected in honor of individual usurpation or national disgrace.

THE GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC. To the Grand Army of the Republic, the living and the dead, a nobler a more worthy tribute is justly due and freely given. Their names are enrolled upon the hearts of their countrymen. The record of their victories is made enduring in the memory of ages by the annual recurrence of this day, and the consummation of their stringgles has been preserved in the fundamental law of their country. No pramid, monument or painting is necessary to secure their memory from decay, for "To live in hearts we leave behind is not to the."

is necessary to secure their memory from decay, for "To live it hearts we leave behind is not to die."

Other nations have crowned with honor those who led their hosts to victory, but the gratitude of the United States could not be confined within such narrow hunts. Its munificent hand has justly been extended to those who bore the heat and burden of the conflict. Asylums have been endowed for the manned, the feeble and the infirm. Homes have been built for the aged and destitute. Pensions have been given with a liberality imparalleled. The widow and the orphan have not been forgotten. While they mourn the loss of the departed soldier they have been deprived of the affection, comfort and support of a futher, husband or brother they have been deprived of the affection, comfort and support of a futher, husband or brother they have obtained the guardianship and sympathy of a nation. While their loss is immeasurably greater than can be repaid a mighty and prosperous people are standing with ready hunds of assistance and heur is of sympathy to aid, to comfort and to protect. Not content with this, the broad and fortile fields of the country's extensive domain were thrown open to soldiers' homestead and bounty claims, and are now dotted with the thrifty homes of the nation's herished wards, and the highway to places of public trust and honor was made easy by the magle password of soldier."

These are some of the spoutaneous and proper manifestations of gratitude which the free and enlightened people of the foremost republic have showered upon its loved and cherished defenders.

to indicate whose mortal remains they covered.

At the close of the exercises at Hillside, the procession reformed and marched to the Masonic and Odd Fellows' cemeteries where ceremonies similar to those at Hillside were performed, Hon. C. C. Powning delivering the address.

The sovereign grand lodge of I. O. O. F. makes it obligatory upon subordinate jurisdictions to set apart a day in FALLEN COMRADES REMEMBERED.

of their victories, entombed in the nation's heart.

And not at Arlington aloue is gratitude shown. In every city, hamlet or town where rests a loyal soldier there is consecrated ground. The gratiente of this republic is so great that it seeks its objects in the remotest corners and the most secluded retreats of its extensive dominions, and showers upon their resting place the chosen tokens of its thankfulness. Grief for the dead is made sadly sweet by sympathy for the living. The two oceans at their remotest places are linked by the united heart beats of grateful citizens, while across the land is drawn the arch of a hemisphere wreathed in floral offerings, silently attesting that our republic is not ungrateful.

While we hold this memorial service in commemoration of that noble army of patriots let us not forcest that for which they fought.

Leeper; to the music and an address by B. F. Curler, which was highly commended by his heavers and creditable to the young man as a speaker and a thinker.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

The exercises at the opera house drew a large crowd. The officers of the day and Graud Army men occupied seats on the stage. Every seat was filled in the body of the house and standing room was at a premium. There was music by the band, remarks by President Foley, prayer by Chaplain Fichette, duets by Messrs. Parry and Erans, and by Mrs. Layton and Mrs. George Hymers. Miss Belle Little recited the pathetic poem, "You Put No Flowers on Papa's Grave," and Judge A. E. Cheney having been introduced by the president of the day, delivered the following.

Vienna's Bachefor Club.

Our Vienna correspondent is able to contradict a misleading report. It has been said that a club of men of position has been formed in that city for the assistance of young women of humble sta-tion who may aspire to marriage with them. A new club has indeed come into being, but it is of quite another sort. It is a club of professed bachelors—a celibate order of dandies. It derives its origin no doubt from a well known London institution which bears the same name. But our Bachelors' club binds its members by no self denying ordinance in regard to the future, and we believe it demands not more than that candidates shall have been single at one time in their lives. That might be tolerated as a passing condition, but it is a very different thing to shut the door to repentance forever.

The Viennese women are justly incensed, and some threaten to retaliate by forming another society pledged to a stern refusal of all offers from the Bach-

Griffith is our accredited representative at Mollendo a native of Peru may have been in temporary charge of the consulate during the outbreak of mob vio-lence. But Mr. Gresham's demand for reparation was based on the offense committed against the government as well as on the injury to person and property.

Prompt as that demand was, the response of Peru has been equally quick and unequivocal. She has expressed her regret for the occurrence, so that the apology due to the government is practically complete, and the proper amount of indemnity can easily be settled. This little incident, sprung upon the new state department and rapidly disposed of, may have an indirect influence much beyond its intrinsic importance as a practical experience of the value of courteous frankness and vigor in dealing with foreign nations.—New York Sun.

Naronic Insurance.

The marine insurance companies on this aide of the Atlantic have given up all hope of the Naronic, and the New York Mutual and the Atlantic Mutual insurance companies have begun to pay off their policies on the Naronic's cargo "Law and custom do not compel us to pay until after a year and a day," said the president of the New York Mutual Insurance company, "but we are satisfied that the Naronic is lost. The rule on this side that marine insurance companies should not pay for losses until the lapse of a year and a day sprang in-to existence in the days when there were only sailing vessels. Then there was good reason for the rule, but in these days of steamships there can be no reason for any such delay."

The president of the Atlantic Mutua Insurance company said that they considered the vessel lost, and there was no use of waiting longer to settle up with the policy holders.

A Sezaonable Trick.

The confectioners have been revenging themselves in the past few days. It is the custom of the majority of girls who enter to buy five cents' worth of candy to eat from the trave about as much more. A Fourth street confectioner filled his counters with all kinds of April Fool candy. Some of it was red hot; other pieces had small lumps of soap inside and others cork and rubber. It was very amusing to watch the young women as they helped themselves to the sweets. The faces they made would have damaged a looking glass. One piece was enough. The trick caused a great deal of merriment among the clerks of the store.—Louisville Courier-Journal

Yearly Income of Paris Theaters. The Paris Temps says that the income of the 52 theaters of the French capital. including the circuses and panorama was last year 22,583,316 francs, 1,000,000 francs less than the income for 1891. The list is led by the Grand Opera House, whose receipts amounted to 8,068,467 francs. Next to the opera house are the Comedie Francaise, with 1,978,525 trancs the Opera Comique, with 1.768.091. Varieties, with 1,185,018, and Bouffes Parisiennes, with 1,180,551 francs. The in come of the Hypodrome was 1,582,880

Proud In His Poverty. There is a movement on foot to relieve the home of the late General Kirby Smith of a mortgage that rested upon it at the time of his death. It is a most worthy object, and we hope and are sure that the response will be ready and generous. General Smith lived and died a poor man. He was one of the most scrupulously honorable men that ever lived, and was too proud in his poverty to ask or accept pecuniary aid.—Mem-phis Commercial.

forming another society pledged to a stern refusal of all offers from the Bachelors clab. This implies the belief that the bachelors cannot possibly keep their vows, and it proves to be in singular harmony with experience. They have broken them by anticipation. One of the former escurted one of the latter the other evening to a theater. He is a young laws adent with more brains than money at the present writing, and he frequently counts pennies in making an estimate of expenses. On the evening in question he did so with such scant margar that a call for a quarter to pay for checking umbrellas more than exhausted it.

A sly search of his pockets just before they went up on the elevated station to take the train home produced only one 5-cent piece. It would never do to proclaim his dilemma to his fair companion He could neither beg nor borrow the other nickel at that time and place, and for a moment he was desperate.

Then he took a chance. As they were about to pass the ticket window he let the young woman precede him, and when he reached his hand through, saying, "Two, please," he left his solitary coin and his pocketknife in front of the ticket seller. That functionary glanced up quickly, took in the situation and without an instant's hesitation passed out the two bits of pasteboard.

Everybody was satisfied. The agent had a good knife for a trifling sum, the future barrister had escaped a mortification, and the young woman remained blissfully ignorant of the whole transaction, as it was desirable she should .-Her Point of View in New York Times.
